Thanks Luc.

I won't comment on the PLT engagement piece. Suffice to say it is not as engaging as is being portrayed. I have a call in to OPS Deputy Bell to discuss this issue.

In speaking with Insp Lucas , he advised that he has been designated as the IC and is schedule for the remainder of the week unless advised otherwise.

As for PLT , he has advised that OPS PLT has partnered up with our PLT team. Appear to be an increase in outreach and engagement on their part. He advises that they are more engaged and this had been a success but it is a slow process as there are many different factions on the hill.

I am sitting in close proximity of him, and there is an obvious issues in communication between their command team and the IC.

Respectfully,
Luc

Thanks Luc well done and this is more aligned with the information we had down from ongoing communications at senior command level. Having said that I have talked to Marcel and Mike Acton who continue to state that PLT has no meaningful role, scope or engagement. Can you flag that on your end again given opportunity. Also, is there a definitive OPS I/C named yet to your knowledge?

Thanks
Dan

Sir,

- I met and Spoke to Insp Russell Lucas.

- They are currently working on the plan on how they will implement this. Creating a clear protocol for their officers on how to proceed. The plan now is to educate people to comply not bringing fuel to the hill. If unsuccessful, they plan to investigate, seize the fuel and charge at a later date should they decide to proceed.
- They have participated in a crown consult and believe the charge of aiding and abetting in Mischief is applicable.
- The expectation of us remains traffic points and POU. We are to observe and report to OPS. OPS will advise us asap should it change.
- They will provide us with the plan and clear messaging as soon as it is ready.
- I strongly emphasized that if they are expecting anything from us other than what we have been doing and any approvals for changes in our posture, will have to be sought from OPP Command.
- Insp. Springer was present during this conversation and supported our posture.

Please advise should you require additional information,
Luc

Luc,

We will need very clear messaging and need to see a plan in writing if they intend to arrest people for possession of fuel or "other materials". What would the Criminal Offence be? Is it supported by the Crown for prosecution. What is their expectation of OPP as this is outside our mandate?

We do POU and traffic control. If we see people carrying gas or supplies we can advise an OPS members but the arrest and charge will be their responsibility. I understand Springer may be trying to talk OPS down from this strategy. May wish to connect with him on what his plans are.

I notified the IC at our CP that this was happening in the background and I would get them more details. Our next officer briefing is at 1800 so we will need details if they are expecting anything from us other than what we have been doing and any approvals for changes in our posture will have to be sought from OPP Command.

Tks,

Craig
